Clarendelle's origin

The brainchild of Prince Robert de Luxembourg, named in honour of Mr Clarence Dillon, his great-grandfather.

«As a young man, living in London, I had neither a cellar nor a significant budget that would allow me to store and acquire classified growths from Bordeaux. I loved the wines from this region and my tastes had been greatly influenced by my annual stays at Château Haut-Brion. I was looking for fine blended wines with some bottle age, an authentic reflection of the South West terroirs and marked by the unique originality of each vintage. They needed to be affordable and dependable while nonetheless displaying complexity, elegance and balance. This is how the Clarendelle family of wines was conceived and ultimately born. My family and I enjoy these wines just as much and as frequently today, as we did with our very first vintage... the 2002 Red that we introduced to the market in late 2005.»

Clarendelle, Inspired by Haut-Brion, uncompromising excellence

The style of the Clarendelle wines is dictated by an expression of the Bordeaux terroir which aim to produce subtle elegance in age-worthy wines.

Born into a culture deeply rooted in a century of prestigious estate wine blending, Clarendelle benefits from the expertise and knowhow of a First Growth winemaking team.

Every year, we revisit the blends in order to reflect only the finest parcels of wine in each individual vintage.

Like the Haut-Brion wines, Clarendelle offers its assurance by representing an uncompromising quality and consistency with every vintage.
